JAPANESE AND KOREANS HATE

Matron of Susannah Wesley
Home Tells of Her Experiences.

The following interview with Mrs. Mack, matron of the local Susannah Wesley Home, appeared in the Denver Post of October 27, in connection with the story of Prince Ito's assassination:

"Friendly feeling is never maintained between the Japanese and the Koreans unless something very strong is brought to bear," is the statement of Mrs. Metta F. Mack, who for four years has been at the head of the Susannah Wesley Home and Training School in Honolulu and who stopped over in Denver for a short time, at the deaconess' home, to present before the Methodist board of missions here her need for a larger appropriation in her work. She left Denver for Minneapolis this noon.

"The first year I was sent to the home," declares Mrs. Mack, "was one of the hardest that I have ever experienced. Our home is for Japanese and Korean women and children. It was the first time in the history of the island that the two nationalities had ever been brought together, and the enmity between the two peoples was something that taxed my utmost energy to overcome."

"We succeeded in our work and a Japanese woman will now care for a Korean baby with almost tenderness, where before she would see one die without the raising of a hand to help it."

During the earthquake Mrs. Mack was in San Francisco, where she had been doing missionary work for several years among the Japanese and Koreans there. She is making a tour of the country, visiting the large cities and endeavoring to explain the need that the work there has for a larger support from the Methodists of the country.

Most of the Korean women of the institution where Mrs. Mack has her headquarters are women who have domestic troubles. It is the custom of the Korean man, when he finds that his wife is unfaithful to him, to mutilate her in a terrible manner. Some of the women who seek refuge in the home are those whose faces have been scarred for life by their husbands, and who fly to the home in order to escape death at the hands of their spouses.

The trials that the missionary in the foreign field must endure are of the greatest, and when sufficient support is lacking it is the hardest imaginable kind of a life. Mrs. Mack's support has been unusually meager, and the fact that the work of the school has doubled since its beginning has not brought any increase in the appropriation from the board of missions.

The last year it has been necessary for Mrs. Mack to keep an American boarding house in Honolulu in order to make her expenses. She has been in missionary work for ten years.

"The Japanese and the Koreans will probably be affected in their spirit toward each other by the Ito killing," said Mrs. Mack, "for their hatred toward each other is of the deepest dye."

"Something greater than an ordinary force will have to be brought to bear in order to overcome this feeling, which increases with the years rather than decreases."

DR. HOBODY RESIGNS AS HEAD OF THE SERVICE

Step Taken to Allow Him to Take Up
Private Practice Here.

The United States Marine Hospital Service at Honolulu is to lose its head. It is not often that the marine service loses its head, but under the present circumstances it is excusable. Dr. W. C. Hobody has written out his resignation, and although it has probably not yet reached Washington, "it's on its way," and will doubtless be accepted when received.

Doctor Hobody intends to take up a private practice in this city, and as he has a host of friends, his decision will be warmly welcomed. He has been in the service of Uncle Sam for twelve years and has been at the head of the San Francisco, as well as Honolulu, branch.

Doctor Hobody is not only known here as one of the best doctors in the city, but also as one of the few surgeons in the Territory, and is admitted by many of his fellow practitioners as the best. He has lately performed several operations at the Queen's Hospital which have resulted more favorably than could have been expected.

CROUP.

Not a minute should be lost when a child shows symptoms of croup. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. For sale by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd., agents for Hawaii.

The child who defined a mountain range as "a large-sized cook-stove" had imagination, if not accurate information. On a test paper at the Sheffield Scientific School, an older student made a much worse blunder. The question read, "What is the office of the gastric juice?" The answer, no doubt struck off in the heat and hurry of the examination, was "The stomach."—Everybody's Magazine.

Teacher was telling her class little stories in natural history, and she asked if any one could tell her what a ground-hog was. Up went a little hand, waving frantically. "Well, Carl, you may tell us what a ground-hog is." "Please, ma'am, it's sausage."—Everybody's Magazine.
